Converting layer types When you add a new layer, it automatically adds to the list at the bottom of the Layers palette; you can use this panel to further organize and manage your layers. You can change the type of layer that you're working with by double-clicking a layer to add it to the list and then clicking a specific type that you want to use. Click the Layers panel menu (at the top of the window) and choose Layer Type from the drop-down menu. (See the earlier section "Creating a New Layer," in this chapter, for details on how to create a new layer.)
